School Entertainment Grand Success

The Wrangell public school entertainment given at the Red Men's Hall, Tuesday evening was another bright link in the chain of entertainment of a year. The program of songs, recitations and monologues was well selected and well delivered.

A large and interested audience attended and all expressed their appreciation of the entertainment which is an indicator of the excellent training Wrangell children are receiving.

New Buildings

New buildings throughout the town is the inevitable program for Wrangell this summer. During 1911, the demand for houses was greater than the supply and considering the progressive strides of Wrangell industries, many houses will be needed this season.

New Post Office Building

J. E. Worden commenced the foundation for a two story 40x46 building on his lot across the alley from the Cash Store. O. A. Brown has the contract for the carpenter work. When finished Mr. Worden will move the Post Office from the present quarters to a part of the new building.

New Residence

Ole Johnson has the contract for building a modern bungalow on Cassiar Street for H. D. Campbell. Work on the building will commence by the first of the week.

Storehouse

A. Lemieux is planning a storehouse to be built across the dock approach from the Red Men's Hall. The building will be 30x30 and a part will be fitted up as a sample room for commercial travelers.

While there is a demand for bachelor quarters commonly termed shacks, we predict that the shack idea will gradually wane and modern bungalows will take their place to a great extent.

Her Habit.

"I don't like the woman you made me take out to supper. She has such a way of pinning you down."
"That's merely force of habit with her. She's a dressmaker."—Baltimore American.

ATTEMPTED MANSLAUGHTER

Russian Mill Hand Attacked on Street by Companion, Injured
Man Has Close Call

Jack Brown, a Russian employed in the Wrangell Sawmill, was attacked on the street by a companion last Sunday evening and nearly bled to death from knife wounds about the head and neck. The assailant, Vasile Deacon, was taken into custody Monday morning by Deputy U. S. Marshal, Schnabel, but in the absence of the Commissioner no trial could be held and Deacon was lodged in jail to await trial.

Jack Brown, a Russian, and Vasile Deacon, a Rumanian, were playing billiards Sunday evening at the Brewery Saloon. Brown thought it time to go home and when he started down the street Deacon objected and tried to stop him. He caught up with Brown in front of the Sentinel office and tried force but Brown broke away and got as far as the Wrangell Machine Shop where Deacon overtook and attacked him with a knife inflicting wounds on the head and neck which exposed but did not sever the jugular vein.

Next morning, Brown was found in a very weak condition, at his room in the old mill boarding house having crawled there from the street. After his cuts had been attended, Deputy Marshal, Schnabel was informed of the fighting and together with Mr. Harding, the jailor, set about in search of the murderous assailant. A search along the sidewalk near the Machine Shop brought out the bloody knife and a bloody shirt was found in the old boarding house where it had been concealed. From the search and inquiries made, Marshal Schnabel gained enough evidence to warrant the arrest of Deacon.

No motive for the crime has been found other than that the two disagreed as to the time for going home and the seemingly utter disregard for human life evidenced by the assault of Deacon probably will earn him a heavy sentence.

Shingle Mill Run

The Wrangell Shingle Mill was given a trial start Monday morning to ascertain whether all was in order. Upon the arrival of the Curacao with supplies, the mill started on the season's cut of the best red cedar shingles on the coast.

Notes From Washington

(By J. J. Underwood)

A lighthouse at Cape St. Elias, costing $125,000 and 28 acetylene lights, the average cost of which is $1800 each, will be the aids to navigation Alaska will receive this year.

Dr. Joseph Holmes, chief of the Bureau of Mines and Alfred H. Brooks, chief of Alaska division, U. S. Geological Survey, assisted by Alaskans and coal mine operators have been drafting a leasing bill to remedy Alaskan Coal Land evils.

Bishop P. F. Rowe has made several appearances before committees in an effort to have some Indian reservations set apart. As about 98 per cent of the territory has been reserved by the Forestry Department his efforts in that direction have not received much encouragement.

St. Philip's Church

The first of a series of Lenten Sermons at St. Philip's Church, Sunday evening, will have for its theme—"The Meaning of Temptation."

St. Valentine

Entertainment

The Social and Progressive Whist give by the ladies of the Catholic Church last Thursday evening, at the Red Men's Hall, was a most successful social event. The hall was appropriately decorated in honor of St. Valentine with hearts and arrows of various sizes.

The evening was started with Whist, six games of which were played, Mrs. N. L. Moen and K. J. Johansen, winning first favors. A short program of songs and recitations then followed, after which a bounteous supper was served. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games and in singing songs.

The ladies of the Catholic Church and all who assisted them in decorating the hall, preparing and serving the supper and in the program of songs and recitations deserve many compliments for the excellent entertainment offered their guests.

The reason for the good attendance at the public school entertainment was fully demonstrated by the quality of the entertainment furnished. Every feature of the program was pleasing and indicated that the necessary training had been received. In days gone by people thought that a great demonstration of facts was an indicator of the work done at school. Stunts like naming the states and territories, bounding counties, naming the Presidents in order or reverse, were accepted as tests of learning. While the usefulness of such knowledge may be found the mechanical element destroyed to some extent the value of the training. The elementary stage of education is the most important habit-forming stage and the best habit formed is that of performing the daily tasks. These tasks are modified and made more pleasant each year by progressive ideas in education. We believe that the Wrangell children are receiving the elementary education in a pleasant manner and that the necessary training is being given.

Not In Proportion.
"I'm a self made man," said the proud individual.
"Well, you're all right except as to your head," commented the other part of the conversation.
"How's that?"
"The part you talk with is out of proportion to the part you think with."
—San Francisco Chronicle.

An Insult.
"Why is Mayme so cool toward Mr. Downright?"
"Because he made a personal remark she didn't like. He told her something was as plain as the nose on her face."
"What's the matter with that?"
"She thinks she's got a pretty nose."
—Baltimore American.

Made Himself at Home.
"Mr. Piggs is altogether too literal."
"How so?"
"The last time he was at my house I told him to make himself thoroughly at home, and in less than five minutes he had quarreled with my wife, kicked the cat out of doors, discharged the cook, spanked the baby and told me I was a fool."
—Petterson's Weekly.

Broken on the Wheel.
The most general punishment for criminals condemned to death in the eighteenth century was the wheel. The victim was laid out and bound to a large wheel, the executioner breaking the bones of his arms, legs and thighs with a heavy iron bar, his dexterous manipulation of which was always applauded by the crowd.—Paul Lacroix.

The Offended One.
"I didn't vote in the last election," said the Georgia moonshiner. "Bout ten year ago the gover'ment mortally offended me, an' I hain't took no interest in it from that day to this."
"But—you should vote; you should stand up for your rights."
"That's jest it," said the moonshiner. "I've got to keep dodgin' all the time. Ever' time I stand up for my rights the revenue folks draw a 'bead' on me, an' the gover'ment gits me!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Parliamentary Manners.
Parliamentary manners astonished a German visitor to England in 1770. "They come into the house," he wrote. "In their greatcoats and with riding boots and spurs. It is not at all uncommon to see members lying stretched out on one of the benches while others are speaking. Some crack nuts; others eat oranges or whatever else is in season. There is no end to their going and out, and as any one wishes to go out he places himself before the speaker and makes his bow, like a schoolboy asking a tutor's permission."

A Bamboo Forest.
There are few spots imaginable more beautiful than a Japanese bamboo forest. It is the most lovely in color, the most aristocratic and the best behaved forest in the world. It whispers pleasantly and gently, and the severest winds cannot make it angry. The long, slim bodies of its trees are useful long after death, for they are made into water pipes, canes, fences, picture frames, vases, fishing rods, roofings, flutes, fans, furniture and poles to support palanquins.

Age of Languages.
The German is older than the French language. The German language reaches away back to the pre-Roman times, when those who used it lived in the isolation of their great northern forests, while the French language is one of the so called "romance" tongues, made up by a blending of the Frankish and Latin after the collapse of the empire, near the close of the fifth century. There is, of course, some Latin visible in German, but not enough to affect the almost pure Teutonic character of the language.—New Era.

Wine Drinking.
France alone pays taxes in a good year on more than 1,000,000,000 gallons of wine—and there are six bottles to a gallon—while, Algeria, planted with vines in the days of the phylloxera, supplies no less than 200,000,000. A tonneau of 200 gallons is a pretty large vessel; a thousand such would fill a good sized ship, and we have to multiply that by a thousand before we reach the production of this one French colony, one-fifth of all the wine consumed in France or re-exported.—London Times.

Tripolitan Proverbs.
"You cannot," says a Tripolitan proverb, "escape your fate, even on a horse." "Whoever," says another, "has maize will soon find one who will lend him flour." "If a dog is to be beaten," says a third, "there is no lack of sticks." A fourth proverb points out that "whoever is seeking pearls must go to the depths of the ocean." Others are, "Even a soothsayer cannot foretell his own fate." "Whoever trusts a woman has been smitten by God, and God punishes everybody according to his deserts."

A Lesson in Music.
A household much given to music comprised three daughters, who played the piano well and showily. At the regular Sunday afternoon gathering a husband of retiring manner was present, and after the daughters had galloped for awhile he was asked to play. He chose one or two compositions designed to show the feeling of the pianist rather than the resources of technique. When he had finished one of the young women said: "You play very well. Who was your teacher?"
With a modesty that was almost painful he answered: "My last teacher was the Abbe Liszt."
—Chicago Post.

Trollope's Cigar Bins.
Trollope was a great smoker and made no attempt to conceal the store of cigars in his library. One wall of the room was devoted to a row of separate cupboards or bins, each with a separate glass door and filled with cigars stacked across each other like timber, so as to allow free circulation of air. On wet days the doors were kept closed and on fine days were left open. A pointed stud was stuck into the wood above the door of the bin in use. As soon as the bin was emptied the stud was moved to above the next door and the empty receptacle refilled from the big chests of cigars which Trollope obtained direct from Havana.

School Notes

Leona Lindman, Correspondent

It is all over but the shouting and the Seniors are still shouting. "Wrangell! Wrangell! W. P. S., $65.75 I Gess Yes." This is the proceeds of the entertainment. The encouragement that we received certainly gave us a boost up the ladder of learning. We will try to show our appreciation of the generous response we received by giving a commencement that will be enjoyed by all.

The Seniors desire to thank the people who so kindly assisted in arranging the hall and the Red Men who granted its use.

Foster Miles who was a much beloved member of the class of 1912 remembered the class by a beautiful pennant. It will adorn the walls of the room and remind us of Foster's genial personality.

Japanese Factory Workers.
Of the Japanese factory hand the average "work life" is short, very few being able to last longer than five years; hence the rural population hesitates to migrate to the city when country employment is abundant.

Wall Street Prices.
When prices rise, says a Wall street authority, all Stock Exchange transactions are thought of, spoken of and commented upon as purchases; when prices decline they are treated only as sales.

She Does the Wooing.
In some parts of China it is customary for the lady to become the suitor. She marries the man instead of the man marrying her. On these occasions the bride pays the expenses of the marriage festival.

Punishing the Ladies.
Female conspirators against Rameses III. of Egypt, says Rawlinson, were condemned in 1250 B. C. "to the servitude of keeping a beer house, which was thought sufficient punishment for ladies of delicacy and refinement."

A Feat of Horse Riding.
At Newmarket, England, May 3, 1758, a wager was laid by a young woman that she would ride on horse back 1,000 miles in 1,000 hours. She accomplished the feat in a little more than one-third of the time named.

The Civil Service.
In the civil service commission the United States government has the greatest employment bureau in the world. Over half a million people are on the government payroll, including soldiers of the standing army, and of these employees nearly half are receiving pay as the result of competitive examinations.

Blue Eyed White Cats.
Dr. Sichel, a French scientist, once observed that a snow white cat with blue eyes never paid any attention to sounds, such as the barking of a dog or the blowing of a whistle. He experimented with great care and found that all the white cats with blue eyes were stone deaf, but in cases where the iris of the eye had a little other color in it the creature could hear.

EDUCATION.

The real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupations that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, death less terrible.—Sydney Smith.

Notice

Children under the age of 12 yrs will not be allowed in the rink evenings. Children from 12 to 15 years only when accompanied by parent or guardian.

SALE OF TIMBER. Ketchikan, Alaska, January 20, 1912. Bids marked outside, "Big Timber Sale Application, December 12, 1911, Tongass," and addressed to the Forest Supervisor, Forest Service, Ketchikan, Alaska, will be received up to and including the 1st day of March, 1912, for all the merchantable dead timber, standing or down, and all the live timber marked or otherwise designated for cutting by the Forest officer, located on and near to be definitely designated by the Forest officer before cutting begins, including about 9 acres, on the north side of Frosty Bay, directly opposite Deer Island, mainland, within the Tongass National Forest, Alaska, estimated to be 500,000 feet B. A Snake Story From India.

A queer story of the cure of a snake bite comes from India. A young man bitten by a venomous snake was evidently dying. The mob called in resolved to try the most powerful remedy he knew. He tied a cowrie shell on to a piece of string and muttered incantations till it began to whirl round and round and finally disappeared. In a few minutes the snake that had done the damage appeared with the string and shell round its neck and was commanded by the mob to put its mouth to the wound for about ten minutes, after which it went away. The dying man speedily recovered.

Divers' Madness.

An Australian pearl diver says that one of the strange effects of diving is the invariable bad temper felt while working at the bottom of the sea. As this usually passes away as soon as the surface is reached, it is probably due to the pressure of the air affecting the brain. The exhilaration and good temper of the mountain climber are contrary feelings from an opposite cause. A diver becomes so angry at some imaginary wrongdoing on the part of those in the boat above that he gives the signal to be pulled up, "with the intention of knocking the heads off the entire crew," only to forget what he came up for when the surface is reached.

WINCHESTER

.401 Caliber

Self-Loading Rifle.

This new Winchester is reloaded by recoil, the repeating as well as the firing mechanism being under control of the trigger finger. A bullet fired from it strikes a blow of 2038 pounds—force enough to topple over the biggest game—penetration enough to reach the innermost vital spot. The wonderful in operation and powerful in execution, this rifle is neither complicated in construction nor cumbersome to handle.
